

To Whom It May Concern,

I've had the great pleasure of working with Chris on multiple projects, including directing him in a short film and a live performance. In each instance, he not only excelled, but managed to exceed my expectations. His commitment to delivering the most honest and accurate performance possible is as assuring to a director as it is inspiring, often leading to fresh character dimensions which ultimately heighten the entire production.

In addition to his skills as an actor, Chris is simply a joy to work with. Between his professionalism and kindhearted nature, having him on set is an exclusively positive experience. During our time working together, he was constantly prepared and punctual for even the earliest morning rehearsals, and was typically first to arrive, despite having the farthest commute. No matter how stressful any situation may have gotten on set, he remained friendly and helpful. To put it quite frankly, it wasn't hard finding crew members once they found out Chris was playing the lead.

Chris balances wholesome, approachable charm with genuine magnetism, both on and off camera. If there's something going wrong with your production, you can be certain it isn't Chris Owen.
